The Current Crop Situation in Virginia

Crops Above 10-Year Average

(By VPA)

Production of food and feed crops in the Old Dominion this year will be above the 10-year average, according to the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. Weather conditions during August were generally favorable for crop growth and firm work. Production of tobacco of 126,488,000 pounds is indicated, growers reporting that 86 per cent of the flue-cured crop had been harvested by September 1, compared with 98 per cent last year and 80 per cent in 1937. The estimated production of flue-cured tobacco is 93,775,000 pounds, which is the largest crop of this type since 1927. Throughout the United States the production of this type is estimated at 29 per cent greater than last year and 44 per cent greater than the 10-year average.

Production of fire-cured tobacco is expected to be 17,655,000 pounds, comparing with the 1938 crop of 14,481,000 pounds and the 10-year average of 21,170,000 pounds. The yield per acre of burley tobacco is expected to be slightly above average, production of this type being estimated at 12,508,000 pounds, comparing with 10,528,000 pounds last year and the 10-year average of 8,808,000. Virginia's sun-cured tobacco production is expected to be one of the largest on record.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has announced that because of large supplies of burley tobacco the agriculture department was preparing to conduct a grower referendum before the first of the year on marketing quotas on next year's crop. If approved by two-thirds of the growers voting, quotas would require farmers planting in excess of their 1940 planting allotments to withhold the excess from the market or pay a penalty tax of half its market value. The date for the referendum will be announced, officials said, as soon as the national marketing quota for next year is determined. In a referendum last year, producers of burley tobacco rejected quotas on this year's crop. Plans also are being made for a referendum, possibly within the next three weeks, on marketing quotas on next year's flue-cured crop. Danville growers are reported as planning to send representatives into the Old Bill area to campaign for crop control, pointing out that economic disasters ahead unless the growers vote to join the control movement.

Other Virginia Crops

In a survey of other Virginia crops, it was reported that corn prospects are unusually good though cut the late and the probable yield per acre of 26 bushels is considerably above the 10-year average of 21.8 bushels. Prospects for Virginia cotton declined materially in August, and the average yield is estimated at 205 pounds compared with 149 last year and the 10-year average of 284 pounds. Estimated production of 181,500,000 pounds for the state's peanut crop is 24 per cent above the small 1938 crop. The yield of late hay crops such as lespedeza, cowpeas and soybeans is expected to be unusually large. The late potato crop is reported to be in very poor due to unfavorable weather conditions and the yield is expected to be considerably below average.

General Election Battle Looms

(By VPA)

Republican and independent opposition in some districts is stirring interest in several state senate and house races as the date draws nearer for the November general election. One of the most outstanding of these battles are expected to take place in the Eastern part of the Old Dominion. Senator Charles J. Hirdendorf, Democratic nominee for re-election, is opposed by Fred Parks, Republican and former state commander of the American Legion. Senator J. W. Bitten, of Tazewell county, is seeking re-election in the face of opposition by Harry Stuart, of Russell county. Republican nominee for senator Witten, who always has run as an independent, says he prefers to "take my chances before the people, but not before the politicians in a convention."

In the Roanoke area, Russell Davis, Republican and attorney of Rocky Mount, is seeking one of the two seats for Senator. At the rates used on tobacco beds, from 1-2 and p r square yard on very light soils, to as much as 2 pounds per square yard on heavy soils it takes 60 to 90 days for Cyanamid to lose its killing power.

At the rates used on tobacco beds, from 1-2 and p r square yard on very light soils, to as much as 2 pounds per square yard on heavy soils it takes 60 to 90 days for Cyanamid to lose its killing power.

Several of the seven agricultural experiment stations which have used Cyanamid successfully for weed control in tobacco plant beds have tried seeding tobacco without waiting at least 60 days, and have reported serious injury to germination of tobacco seed in such special tests. It really is necessary to apply the Cyanamid 60—90 days or more before seeding, except under the most favorable possible soil, moisture, and temperature conditions, otherwise tobacco seed, as well as weed seed, may be killed.

Growers who cooperated in these tests were instructed to leave the bids uncovered after applying the Cyanamid, so they would absorb as much rain as possible, since adequate moisture is essential to a good kill of weeds and complete disappearance of the killing power of the Cyanamid before seeding time. They were instructed, also, to use their usual plant-bed special fertilizer at planting time, and to avoid dragging or digging up live weeds when preparing the bed for seeding.

This method of weed control has been in practical farm use for four years. It has been thoroughly tested in every important tobacco-growing region in the United States. No question remains as to its effectiveness in controlling weeds. And it offers a tremendous saving, both in labor and money.

Cyanamid Will Kill Weeds

New York, N.Y., Sept. 20.- "The fewest weeds and the largest and thriftiest tobacco plants were on the bed which I treated with Cyanamid last fall to kill weed seeds."

That simple statement accurately summarizes the many reports received by American Cyanamid Company from growers who cooperated in testing Cyanamid for weed control in tobacco plant beds in the most tobacco growing regions of the country last season:

L. W. Allen, of Kentucky, reported that Cyanamid gave better weed control than steaming. He used only 4 1/2 hours to weed 300 yards of Cyanamid-treated bed. J. D. Weaver, of North Carolina, reported that it took more time to weed 200 yards of untreated bed than to weed 1200 yards of Cyanamid-treated bed.

S. W. Land, of Virginia, commented on better and earlier plants, as well as good weed control. Joe Cheney, of Maryland, noted the same improvement in quality of plants. He found no hand-weeding necessary on 720 yards of Cyanamid-treated beds, but spent $26 for hand weeding 200 yards of untreated beds. R. E. L. Trogden, of Tennessee got good weed control except where surface water washed unpulverized soil containing weed seed onto the bed after the Cyanamid was applied.

The actual field practices of these and other growers who reported their results varied more or less, but may be summarized as follows:

"In early fall, after clearing the bed of weeds and trash, it was plowed thoroughly, with particular care to smash clods, and smoothed off well enough so that the surface was then evenly broadcast over the bed and thoroughly raked in, using a depth of three or four inches with a spike-tooth harrow, weighted enough to act as a drag. The treatment was completed 90 days or more before time to seed tobacco, so as to eliminate any danger of killing tobacco seed with seed meal."

Cyanamid, at heavy rates of application, has the peculiar characteristic of killing seeds when first applied, and then losing all its killing power after being in contact with moist soil for a few days. At the rates used on tobacco beds, from 1-2 and p r square yard on very light soils, to as much as 2 pounds per square yard on heavy soils it takes 60 to 90 days for Cyanamid to lose its killing power.

IT'S EASY to CONTROL WEEDS in TOBACCO BEDS with GRANULAR 'AERO' CYANAMID

THIS IS ALL YOU DO—

1. Select a good plant bed location and clear it of all weeds and trash.
2. Prepare a fine, clod-free seed bed.
   In cloddy, poorly-prepared soil many weed seeds are likely to escape being killed.
3. Broadcast Granular 'Aero' Cyanamid evenly at the recommended rate.
   For average tobacco soils 1 pound per square yard. For light, sandy soils ½ to ¾ pound per square yard. For heavier soils 1½ to 2 pounds per square yard.
4. Mix the Cyanamid thoroughly with the top four inches of soil.
   Do it any way you want to—light discing, harrowing, or raking—but mix it thoroughly.

N. B. This job must be done in the fall, 60 to 90 days or more before time to seed tobacco.

Sentinels of Health

"Don't Neglect Them!"

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. They cast it to keep the flowing blood stream free of its waste of 48 hours. Then, in health, you don't notice the kidneys at work. But when the kidneys must remove from the blood 3 pints of waste matter, or when the kidneys fail to function as they should, you may suffer from backache, nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, leg pains, rheumatic pains.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further indication that the kidneys need help.

The combined and proper treatment of diuretic stimulants to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisons in the body would be the ideal way to relieve such troubles. Use Doan's Pills. Used the world over. Insist on Doan's at all drug stores.

ISAIAH: FORETELLING THE BIRTH OF THE MESSIANIC KING

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 7:14; 9:1-7; 11:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.—Isaiah 9:6.

Christ is coming! Christ has come! Christ is coming again! All three of these great truths are declared by Holy Scripture. In our lesson for today we study the prophecy of His birth which was given by Isaiah about 750 years before the event took place, and with it we find many beautiful details concerning His blessed character and accomplishments. It is entirely appropriate that the lesson for today should be taken from the Old Testament and relate to the prophecy of the coming of the Messianic King, thus binding together the Old and the New Testaments. Isaiah's prophecy prepares us to study His life in the Gospel of Matthew, beginning next week.

I. The Coming of the King (7:14; 9:1-6).

To us it is entirely understandable that the Son of God was to become flesh and dwell among us and that all the grace and power of God should be upon Him, for we know that He did come in perfect fulfillment of the Scriptures. But let us not fail to note the marvel of this revelation made centuries in advance through God's prophet.

1. Born of a Virgin (7:14; 9:6).

He was to be born. Christ did not come as a fully matured divine being after the fashion of the so-called gods of mythology, but He entered our needy world as the Babe of Bethlehem's manger. What infinite condescension!

He was to be born of a virgin, and so He was. There are those who would minimize the importance of this, or try to explain it away by interpreting the word "virgin" to mean a young married woman. The late Robert Dick Wilson, an outstanding authority, says, "The great and only difficulty lies in disbelief in predictive prophecy and in the almighty power of God, or in the desire to throw discredit on the divine Sonship."

2. God with Us (7:14).

"Immanuel" means "God with us." Isaiah had a foreglean of the great truth which brought the eternal Son of God into that God-man relationship which was absolutely indispensable if there was to be redemption. Sin had made a barrier between God and man which man could not pass, and only as the God-man could He, came through that barrier to be "God with us" could there be any hope of our salvation.

3. A Great Light (9:2).

The Messiah was to break through the dense darkness of sin and sorrow to bring light and joy. How gloriously that prophecy has been fulfilled!

II. The Character of the King (9:6, 7; 11:1-5).

The prophet foretold not only the meaningful names of the coming Messiah, but pictured in glowing beauty the mighty things which He was to accomplish.

1. Revealed by His Names (9:6).

"Wonderful"—that word has been so misused that it means comparatively little to us. It really fulfills its true meaning in Christ. He is unique, remarkable, yes, truly wonderful. "Counsellor"—in every detail of life, great or small, an infallible guide. "Mighty God"—not just like God, or representing God; Christ is God. "Everlasting Father"—the tender and loving, unfailing One to whom time does not bring any change, for He is the "Father of eternity." "Prince of Peace"—He is not yet the ruler of the nations of the world, hence we hear not only of wars but of rumors of wars. Mark it well that there will be no enduring peace until He comes to reign whose right it is to reign, the divine Prince of Peace.

2. Revealed by His Deeds (9:7; 11:1-5).

Eternal justice and righteousness, peace, wisdom, understanding, counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and the fear of God, unfailing equity—all these glorious accomplishments are to characterize the Messiah according to Isaiah's prophecy.

Has the prophecy been fulfilled? We know that all of these qualities were in Christ when He came to earth the first time, but the complete fulfillment of this prophecy awaits that day toward which the child of God looks with joy and hope when Christ shall come again. As we study this portion of our lesson, our hearts should cry out with John, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus" (Rev. 22:20).
